

Subject Research Guides

- [1]

The subject research guides are online bibliographic tools for research in Puerto Rican Studies. The guides include links to research centers, museums, organizations and government sources of information. In addition, the guides include databases that contain information on Puerto Rican and Latino Studies in the social sciences and the humanities. These guides will serve as an important tool or pathway for researchers and the general public to familiarize themselves with online sources of information in Puerto Rican Studies. Traditional print reference sources such as biographical dictionaries and selected encyclopedias will also be included. Some of the sources will also include a brief description that will provide information for users on the content of a particular item.
